Research: Measuring Group Climate at your Unit

Contact: dekker.a@hsleiden.nl // miert.van.v@hsleiden.nl
University of Applied Sciences Leiden, the Netherlands

This questionnaire is part of the group climate research in residential facilities. The research is conducted by the researchers from the University of Applied Sciences Leiden, the Netherlands. Participating in this research will give you the chance to give your opinion and share your experiences about your stay. The results are used to monitor the stay of young people in the facilities and to improve the group climate as far as possible. After the measurement you will hear about the results during the feedback meetings in December.

We ask you to complete all parts of the questionnaire. It consists of three parts: part 1 and 2 consider your stay at your particular unit and part 3 contains general questions. There are no wrong or right answers; your opinion is very important. Please put a circle around the answer which is best for you. We also ask you to give a score to different elements of the group climate and to explain why you gave that score. Completing the questionnaire takes around 10-15 minutes.

Your data are used and registered anonymously by the researchers and participation is on a voluntary basis.
